Some of the major goals of social skills training are (but not limited to):

- To change poor social behavior patterns that may negatively be impacting their academic experience.
- To teach children about the verbal as well as nonverbal behaviors involved in social interactions.
- To help children accurately interpret social signals so they can determine how to act appropriately in the company of others. This includes the company of family and friends.
- To improve your child's ability to function, in everyday social situations.
- Provide alternative behaviors to anger, becoming emotionally hurt and feeling alone.
- Allowing the children to view all perspectives.
- Most of all to make socializing fun so that the children will want to socialize.
- To Make and Keep Friends!
